Cat 5 Cable Extender Base and Remote Unit - Cables To Go CTG 39959 + 39961 Pkg/1

Extend VGA signal up to 300 meters over a Cat5E UTP cable, distributes the signal to 1 monitor, projector, or display. Ideal for when your VGA monitor needs placed beyond 100' VGA cable limitation or you want to split the signal to multiple displays. Driving a VGA signal over Cat5E helps you take advantage of your UTP cable infrastructure already there. The TruLink VGA over Cat5 solution is ideal for applications when you need to place your computer in remote location. This is common in digital signage applications for retail stores, houses of worship, classrooms, and boardrooms where you need video presentation in one room, but want the computer to be out of sight and in a safe and secure environment. With the TruLink VGA over Cat5 Extender, you can place your display across the room, on another floor, or in another building while your computer remains in a convenient location. Cat6 cables can be used but are not recommended due to skewing of signal pairs. Also, VGA signal gain and equalization length can be adjusted as necessary. Input: One HD15 Female, One DC/12V Power Male (to power the Extender); Output: One RJ45 Female (to connect the base and remote units).

USB 2.0 to XGA Adapter - Cables To Go CTG 30540 Pkg/1

Use an available USB port to expand your computer's video capabilities. Featuring straightforward plug-in connectors and simple driver setup (via a built-in memory chip to find the driver), this adapter creates a secondary VGA connection for dual monitor functionality. With two monitors, you can view a large spreadsheet over two screens, open email attachments on a separate screen, develop multiscreen presentations, or expand your graphic design workstation. Create a dual monitor configuration without buying a new computer or installing an internal video card. Not only is the adapter simple and cost-effective, it's also bus-powered so an external power cord is not required. Its compact size also makes it portable so you can use it anywhere.
